Cornwells Hts. Man Trains Service Men in Swimming

Seaman First Class John Lumsden, 3rd, Cornwells Heights, is now serving as swimming instructor in the daily swimming classes held at the Central Y. M. C. A. pool, Philadelphia, for all coast guardsmen in the Philadelphia district. The class is a new idea brought out by Captain Eugene A. Coffin to adequately train the new enlistees, who come from all walks of life. It is the first step to take away any fear of the water. In ten days, under expert guidance, they will become swimmers, it is said. Once out of the novice class, the swimmers are taught various forms of carrying and rescuing holds. The class, which is being held at the Y. M. C. A. pool, Philadelphia, will be continued through the summer in the Delaware River to give the men actual experience in swimming against the tide and rough water.

Seaman Lumsden, who is 21 years of age, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lumsden, Jr. A former resident of Croydon, John was a graduate of St. Thomas Aquinas School, Croydon. He attended Northeast Catholic high school, Philadelphia, where he starred in swimming. He was formerly coach of St. Joseph's College natators; captain of the Beach Haven, N. J., beach patrol, and erstwhile junior national 220-yard free-style champion. John enlisted in August, but was not called to active duty until the early part of January. Mr. Lumsden, Jr., is general manager of Samuel Jackson & Sons, Croydon.

HAS PNEUMONIA

Mrs. Hettie Mitchener, Swain street, was taken to Abington Hospital last evening in the Bucks County Rescue Squad ambulance. She is being treated for pneumonia. Her refreshments were served.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

Japs Increase Drive Against MacArthur

Washington—The War Department announced today that the Japanese have launched a "particularly heavy" attack on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's left flank supported by the fire of naval vessels and aircraft with "heavy losses on both sides."

In addition, the War Department said in a communiqué, the Japanese have made new landings on the west coast of Luzon and are pouring reinforcements into the fray "greatly increasing the numerical superiority of the invaders."

"The enemy," said the department, "succeeded in taking a number of positions on the west coast. Fierce counter-attacks by our troops expelled the Japanese from some of these points, but others remain in possession of the enemy."

Brazil Breaks With Axis

Rio de Janeiro—Brazil today served notice that she plans to sever all diplomatic relations with Germany, Italy and Japan "almost immediately" while the Inter-American Conference Sub-Committee on Economics unanimously approved a resolution breaking off all economic relations between the American republics and the Axis.

The action of the economic sub committee came with dramatic suddenness and appeared to be a vital blow to the dwindling Axis resources and raw materials pool.

Brazil's determination to sever diplomatic relations with the Axis nations was made known by Brazilian Foreign Minister Dr. Oswaldo Aranha in a statement to the press.

Dutch Bombers Blast Jap Vessels

Batavia—In their second smashing raid on Japanese ship concentrations in two days, Dutch army bombers today blasted Jap vessels in the vital Straits of Macassar, capsizing a large passenger liner and scoring direct hits on a big transport and a destroyer.

The ships were attacked off the Borneo port of Balik Papan, which has been under Japanese fire for several days.

Two 750 pound bombs were said to have capsized the passenger liner, while another 750 pound bomb tore a huge hole in the side of the big transport. The Jap destroyer sustained several direct hits by 100 pound bombs.

All the Dutch planes returned safely.

Terrific Aerial Attack

London—A terrific British aerial attack which smashed and scattered 400 enemy motorized transport vehicles on the Libyan Desert was announced by the British Air Ministry today.

According to an observer, the Air Ministry said, the transports were packed like sardines in a Libyan battle area when they were attacked on Thursday by fighter and bomber aircraft of the Imperial Air Forces.

Soviets Threaten Nazi Stronghold

Moscow—Smolensk, important Nazi stronghold west of Moscow and last-known field headquarters of Adolf Hitler, was threatened today by a wide sweeping Russian advance through the Valdai hills.

A new war bulletin said meanwhile that operations continued throughout the night.

The latest Russian successes were pictured by authorities as representing an advance of 65 miles over a 70-mile front, the biggest single advance yet registered during the current offensive.

Australia Mobilizes Home Defense

Melbourne—Army Minister Francis Forde today ordered immediate mobilization of the Australian home defenses, and indicated that all married men under 35 and single men under 45 would be called to the colors "in view of the seriousness of the war situation."

TO CANVASS HULMEVILLE FOR HOSPITAL AID FUND

Will Raise Money for Supplies For Emergency Hospital In Langhorne

TO SERVE THAT AREA

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 24—A representative group of Hulmeville residents assembled in the town hall last evening for a meeting of Hulmeville Disaster Committee, called by the chairman, Burgess Leon R. Comly.

The main purpose of the meeting was to reach a decision as to how funds should be raised to cover Hulmeville's share in the emergency hospital unit for this area, to be located in the Memorial House, Langhorne. The area hospital unit will serve as Hulmeville, Langhorne, South Langhorne, Langhorne Manor boroughs; and Midtown Township.

It was decided to conduct a house-to-house canvass within the borough, volunteering to care for designated areas in the campaign, they in turn if need be securing aides. Every house in Hulmeville will be visited between now and next Friday, with families being asked to contribute whatever sum of money they can. The sum needed in the entire district is $500, with Hulmeville's allotment being possibly $75 or $80.

With this money cots, bandages, medicines, and other equipment will be purchased, so that any hospital cases can be cared for should any disaster arise, either local or otherwise with refugees coming into the area. Should bandages, medicines, etc., be used for any other than local cases at any time, it was pointed out, the Red Cross will reimburse those in charge of the center or supply necessary materials to be used in such cases.

Four physicians, two dentists, and several nurses are prepared to give volunteer service; and it is stated that

BOREDOM IN WARTIME

It is not bombing raids, but the absence of them, that affects civilian morale most adversely. At least that seems to be the conclusion reached by Prof. Noel Frederick Hall, who, until his appointment as a British minister in Washington last March, was a member of the ministry of economic warfare in London.

"It is easier to be bombed than to be bored," he said in an address before representatives of group-work and recreational agencies in New York City.

Professor Hall believes that there is comparatively little danger of extensive bombing of civilian populations in the United States. For that reason he is concerned about morale. Civilian defense organizations in this country, he contends, will have to operate to keep the civilian mind occupied with pleasant things so that boredom and fear psychology will have no opportunity to get in their work. That threat to morale, he pointed out, does not exist where there are spectacular things to be done, such as "rehousing a bombed district."

Britain guessed wrongly in estimating the effects of air raids. The British overestimated the number of people likely to be killed. They underestimated the large number of all kinds which are caused by bombing. As Professor Hall says:

"We prepared too many hospitals for serious cases, too many shrouds, too many graveyard sites. We had not prepared sufficiently to give a large number of people, whose clothes had been rendered temporarily useless, clean shirts or shoes or warm clothing, or to give women combs, hairpins, face towels and cooking utensils to replace those that had been rendered temporarily useless by all the dirt and dust that flies about after an air raid."

Thus civilian defense groups have a double problem. They must strive to keep people from being bored when there are no air raids, and they must try to prevent the accumulation of annoyances when there are raids. Whether it is better to be bored than annoyed, Professor Hall did not say. But both evils are to be prevented if possible.

AWAY FROM WASHINGTON

Lack of available space and growing belief that it would be wise to move some government agencies away from Washington are the two factors that prompted Federal representatives to search the Middle West for suitable housing facilities.

When the District of Columbia was set aside as the site of Washington, the nation's capital, the chief consideration was its central location. Today it is far from the center of population and from the geographic center of America. The center of population today is in southern Indiana, and the nation's capital is so remote from the West Coast that it is practically inaccessible to millions of citizens.

Housing possibilities in Washington are virtually exhausted and scores of apartments have been taken over for the constantly-growing army of civilian workers. With office space and living quarters lacking, the government has begun to examine the possibility of decentralization. The danger of an enemy attack on the nation's capital is another reason why it is believed prudent to move some of the departments farther from the coast.

"HUTCH" OF THE R.A.F. by PETER MUIRSYNOPSIS

Forced down on a golf course in Kent, England, David "Hutch" Hutchinson, American flyer with the famed "Hornets" squadron of the R.A.F., meets lovely Wendy Bruce. The latter, an ambulance driver on leave, is the daughter of Lord and Lady Harrowsdale, whose estate, "The Downs," is nearby. Just as David finishes repairing an oil leak, he sees three Messerschmitts chasing a single Spitfire. He joins the battle just as the British flyer and one Nazi crash. Hutch downs one of the remaining enemy planes; the other disappears into the clouds. When news comes to "The Downs" that Philip, Wendy's brother, is to take the place of a "Hornet" who crashed nearby, the girl's heart sinks for fear it was David. She is overcome with emotion when Philip telephones that David is safe. In the meantime, Hutch has returned to his base, to learn that his friend, Capt. John McCall, was the flyer who had "bought it" (an R.A.F. pilot for dying in combat). Two of Hutch's buds, Arthur Stafford and Rusty Ransome, do their best to cheer him up. Word comes that a fleet of bombers was sighted over Hastings. Hutch is made squadron leader in Mac's place, and prepares to take off for the attack.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Hutch was warming up and almost ready to start when he saw a stocky young man in aviator's uniform, his wings too shiny and very new, come running across the field towards the C.O. He guessed it must be Wendy's brother, and he was right. Philip Bruce had just arrived and, seeing the squadron about to take off, had run as hard as he could to report and ask permission to join this flight.

"Why not?" the C.O. said. "We're one plane short in the Yellow Flight. That's the second section, as you know, and the leader can keep an eye on you." He signalled Hutch to go ahead, ordered another plane out of the hangar at top speed, and yelled at the head mechanic to fetch a flying suit, helmet and parachute.

He rolled his plane over lazily, opened the motor wide and led it towards the C.O. He guessed it must be Wendy's brother, and he was right. Philip Bruce had just arrived and, seeing the squadron about to take off, had run as hard as he could to report and ask permission to join this flight.

"Hutch had the sun well at his back now, and it would be hard for the Germans to see the squadron. Continuing in the same direction for a moment, he spoke over the R.T. (radio-telephone) to his men,

"They're coming out of the clouds," he said. "There are probably several squadrons, but no fighters, Heinkels. As soon as they're well out, stand by for a dive. The Red Flight will attack the leaders, the Yellow to the left, the Blue to the right, and the Green Flight will dive on the tail. Ready? Let's go!"

Written about the thousands of American youths recruited in private schools for the air service of Uncle Sam, "Flying Cadets," featuring William Gargan, Edmund Lowe and Peggy Moran, opens at the Grand Theatre today. Frank Albertson, recently in "When the Dalton's Rode" and Burma Convoy"; Frankie Thomas, the Broadway boy star of "Your Loving Son" and Roy Harris head the supporting cast.

Telling the dramatic story of a woman who stoops to virtual murder, as well as blackmail, in her frantic struggle for riches, "The Little Foxes" presents an arresting theme to film-goers. Bette Davis is starred in the production, adapted from Lillian Hellman's stage success. It opens at the Grand on Sunday.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Rated as one of Hollywood's happiest marriages, the union between John Beal and Helen Craig thrives even though an entire nation separates the pair much of the time. Beal is busy constantly on the west coast in pictures, his latest being "Doctors Don't Tell," now at the Bristol Theatre.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance" is also being shown.

In their first picture in over a year, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are starred in "Great Guns" slated to open tomorrow at the Bristol Theatre. "Three Girls About Town" will be shown.

RITZ THEATRE

Clark Gable and Lana Turner, who stand pretty well up in Hollywood circles when it comes to masculine and feminine "glamour," are teamed for the first time in "Honky-Tonk," which opened last night at the Ritz Theatre. Gable plays the role of a two-fisted gratifying card sharp in a gold camp, while Miss Turner appears as a prim Boston school teacher who came West to find her father.

TRENTON CATHOLIC IS 28-10 VICTOR OVER BRISTOL HIGH FIVE

Wave Passers Easily Subdue Local Five With Fine Defense

MELIDIO LEADS BRISTOL

Cardinal and Grey Were Trailing at Half-Time by 13-0 Tally

By Jack Gill

Bristol High School's basketball team nosedived to defeat at Trenton last night when it suffered a stinging 28 to 10 setback from the Trenton Catholic five. The winning aggregation held the locals to four goals from the field and a pair of fouls registered by Kenny Herrmann.

Each winter Bristol finds the Catholic squad a hard club to handle, and this time the Cards found a jittery first half ruining their chances of pulling through to a precedent shattering victory. It was one of those "off" nights during which the ball slithered off the backboard and to the floor in discouraging fashion. You can imagine what the ball game was like when you learn of the 13 to 0 halftime edge enjoyed by the winners.

The charges of Coach Norm Wietig, after having suffered several successive setbacks, played a remarkably fine game on the defense and hung close all evening. Charles O'Brien, with 7 markers, was the scoring star of the evening, while Bristol thanked tall Nick Melidio for a pair of fielders in the last half.

After blowing a 15 to 12 half-time advantage, the Bristol Jay-Vees suffered the same fate as their varsity brothers in the preliminary. Plebani sparked the Bunnies in the first half, but Bud Woolman tabbed eight points and Kelly raked up 7 in the second part of the contest for Catholic to lead the wave in a grand uprising.

the hospital unit will be so equipped that an emergency operation might be performed there in case of disaster striking. Blood plasma will be provided by the Red Cross.

Solicitations during the next few days will be in charge of the following or their designated aides: the Misses Margaret Perry, Eima E. Haefner; Messrs. Howard Black, Samuel J. Hill, C. Wesley Haefner, George Bilger, Thomas Wheeler. Any individual not at home when the solicitors call, may give their donations to any one of the above by next Friday, when returns will be made.

Thomas K. Schatt spoke of the setting up of two first-aid stations in Hulmeville borough fully equipped for first-aid administration. Any cases that might need further attention would then be sent to the emergency hospital at Langhorne. The two local first aid stations will be the William Penn Fire Company station, in charge of Miss Margaret Perry; and one at the Vornhold mill, Main street, and Recitz avenue, with Howard Black and Earl Phipps arranging for such. At each station first-aid workers, who have completed their training courses, will be assigned. They will go immediately to such posts during any possible air raid, or at time of any other emergency. It was stated that the funds for supplies at the first aid stations will possibly be provided by borough council.

A committee of three was named last evening to outline list of supplies for the two stations, the committee including the Rev. Albert Eastburn, Mrs. George W. Lefferts, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Mucklow. A plan whereby stretchers are to be made was mentioned. A suggestion was made also that residents set aside blankets they have no need of, also pieces of muslin. These may be then cleaned and donated to those in charge of the first aid units, for storage for any future use. Folding cots will also be appreciated.

One suggestion made was that men of the town, not engaged as firemen, emergency police, air wardens, or first aid workers, volunteer to act as stretcher bearers.

Another discussion was relative to setting up a kindergarten, where children could be taken after any raid, by those parents who will be summoned for first aid duty. This matter is to be looked into further.

BENSALEM GIRLS TRIUMPHANT, WINNING FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 24—Scoring at will, the Bensalem high school girls won their fifth consecutive game of the season here last night, trimming the Southampton six, 52-35, in a rough game. It was also the third straight Lower Bucks County League victory for the undefeated Owlettes.

The Pensalem's passing attack led by Captain Doris Gonzalez ran true to form as it fed the ball to the shooting forwards who dropped in the sphere repeatedly.

Eleanor Hughes and Doris Ely dropped in 42 of the visitors' points while the other ten went to Hazel Lamont. The Owlettes piled up a 18-lead at the quarter and by the time the half whistle blew Coach Smith's girls were in front by a 33-14 count.

The Owlettes have another league contest scheduled for next Friday when they meet Buckingham at home.

Measures to take care of the children in case of an emergency were adopted at a fairly well attended meeting of the Warrington Parent-Teacher Association held in the Warrington school house, Tuesday evening. Following a brief discussion members of the association decided to purchase a first aid kit and some form of an alarm which may be sounded by the teachers in case of an air raid or other emergency.

During the meeting, which was in charge of the president, Mrs. Carroll B. Keck, the teachers, Miss Helen McKinstry and Miss Gertrude C. Haldeiman, read rules relating to the duties of the children and the teachers in case of an emergency. Both teachers reported the children are being trained according to the rules, which were placed in the school by County Superintendent Charles H. Boehm.

The association decided to purchase a well-known publication for the pupils of the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades. Two former pupils of the school were reported to be seriously ill in the Abington Hospital, and it was decided to send them gifts.

BUCKINGHAM HIGH GIRLS WIN AT BUCKINGHAM IN A LEAGUE MATCH

Lumberville residents witnessed a thrilling rescue from the icy clogged Delaware this week—a rescue brought about by a telephone call to the animal shelter of the Bucks County S. P. C. A. and the quick response of Agent Ralph Horton.

Today a fairly happy dog of uncertain ancestry is recovering from the effects of many hours of exposure to the icy waters of the river and the cold winds, at the S. P. C. A. shelter, and is expected to be nearly as good as new in a few days.

When Agent Horton arrived, with a friend, Anthony Hasiak, who accompanied him as an aid, he found the dog had been thrown from ice floe into the river and had managed to get onto a shallow spot with enough shrubbery to save him from being washed away.

But his legs were practically frozen stiff from exposure.

With the aid of a bridge policeman, Agent Horton got a bridge boat from the Jersey side, and after a half hour of rowing among the ice floes succeeded in getting to the dog and removing it to land. It's two feet were so badly frozen it was unable to walk.

Dr. M. K. Amadon, of Doylestown, took charge of the dog, and after treatment was given it, Agent Horton removed it to his home where it has since recovered sufficiently to walk gingerly around on its still very badly frosty feet.
